Environmental Geoscience MRes

Find out more

Ranked in the top 110 universities in the world
(QS World University Rankings 2024)
On this course you will:

• Develop advanced analytical skills whilst leading your own research project in environmental geoscience.

• Design your own unique pathway choosing optional modules from a variety of streams including climate change, environmental monitoring and management, ecology and water.

Compulsory modules (140 credits)
  Research Dissertation in Environmental Geoscience (120 credits)
  Data Analysis for Geoscience (20 credits)

Optional modules (40 credits)

• Gain in-depth knowledge required for further academic study in environmental geoscience.

• Prepare for a career in a research-focused role in the field of environmental management or consultancy.